Study Supports The Challenge of Protecting Against Mesothelioma

The asbestos study was not targeting malignant mesothelioma, Rather, researchers from the Department of Pathology at Ramathibodi Hospital, Mahidol University in Bangkok wanted to determine how many people who died in Thailand in a one-year period had traces of asbestos in their lungs. The post-mortem analysis indicated that the mineral was present in the lungs of 48.5% of the 200 autopsies conducted, regardless of what they had died of their sex, or their age. The toxic fibers were even found in the lungs of a two-year-old who had died of congenital heart disease.

Thank you so much for your wordings, and encouragements.

we would like to help for any startup companies for their website, logo, branding, marketing-etc for reasonable prices. __More

Great design team and quick turn around, with their help we have improved our google search results. My company has depended on them for quite sometime now and we have been doing business with them for over year now. Their web design team is very knowledgeable and they always let us know when a new Google update is coming up before anyone even knows. If you want a reliable web design A digital marketing company then I will recommend 9Gubes.
